A new training programme from PS5

RULES FOR DEALING WITH AN ARMED ROBBERY

This new book and training programme, created by Steve Collins and Bill Wyllie, is in response to the increasing concerns regarding the safety of staff and personnel if faced with an armed robbery. These guidelines or (RULES) have been developed to assist owners and managers to provide a safer workplace and forms part of Steve Collins R.E.A.C.T Survival Files Confrontation Management and Personal Protection System.

Armed robbery is the crime of seizing money, property and/or goods by threats of extreme physical violence. Weapons will always be present and utilised to intimidate and terrorise, thus instilling sufficient fear into the victims to conquer any resistance.

Street violence, weapons related crime and armed robberies are on the increase.

In fact the risk of armed robbery is now so significant that business owners and their staff are understandably showing great concerns. Whilst all practical and physical security precautions should be taken to reduce the risk of a robbery, there is no substitute for educating people to deal with the situation in a manner that ensures the best possible outcome in worst-case scenarios. The preservation of life is paramount and we all have a duty of care to implement armed robbery counter measures.

10 RULES for dealing with and surviving an armed robbery. Learning the 10 RULES for dealing with an armed robbery is essential to the enhancement of your own and your staff's safety when faced with this type of life endangering crime. The 10 RULES are easy to understand and no previous experience in security training is required. The 10 RULES take you step by step through a logical process. Red Rules teach the recommended responses and reactions whilst an armed robbery is in progress. Green Rules teach the recommended procedures after an armed robbery has taken place.
